RE: Status Update of Dugout Mine, Permit #C/007/0039

Had contact with Jay Marshall on April 14, 2020 from Wolverine Fuels Bronco about the Dugout mine.

Maintenance at the mine site is ongoing. The mine site is still idled. Plans are still in place to finish Phase II of the Waste Rock Site.

A copy of Jay Marshall's memo is attached.

Karl: as per your request for a memo to file, see below:

COVID-19 update: Employees are wearing masks in the morning meeting. Management type meeting are held where a 8 foot distance can be practiced. Managers have the option to work remotely if they ae set up to do so. Cleaning and disinfecting efforts have increased to provide a safe work environment for or employees. All visitors including vendors have to complete a Corona Virus questionnaire for management's review. Depending on the response to the questionnaire they may or may not be allowed on the property. Social distancing is practiced whenever possible.

The mine is still in shutdown mode with no production taking place. Most of the infrastructure and equipment is being removed from the mine. The infrastructure needed for access to the Gilson seam remains in place. Once the market turns around the remaining infrastructure will allow us to access the remaining reserves. Surface maintenance and monitoring are ongoing.

Plans are still in place to finish the Phase II expansion at Waste Rock in the near future.

If you need anything else please let me know.

Stay Safe,

Jay
