Subject: Startup notification, Muddy Drilling project 2007

Gregg, Tom, and Pete:

It looks like things are shaping for resumption of drilling operations on the Muddy Drilling project beginning Monday of next week, June 25, 2007. We will start moving some equipment to staging areas and working on reconnecting waterlines, etc. One day next week we will have the helicopter fly down from the Energy West project to help us set the pump and lay water line in Muddy Creek. That process should take only about an hour or so.

Lancaster drilling will be handling all of the drilling operation this year. They are currently planning to move onto the site on about July 6.

I appreciate all your work in helping us continue this project this year.

Thanks,

Mark
