ABANDONED MINE RECLAMATION PROJECT
OPEN HOUSE - PUBLIC INVITED

A proposed abandoned mine reclamation project that would seal about 220 open abandoned mines in the North Tintic Mining District in Juab, Utah, and Tooele Counties will be discussed at an open house Thursday, March 19, 2009. The open house will be held from 4:00 p.m. until 7:00 p.m. in the Provo City Library, Brimhall Room, 550 North University Avenue, Provo, Utah. The Utah Division of Oil, Gas and Mining’s Abandoned Mine Reclamation Program is proposing to conduct the reclamation project in the late summer and fall of 2009.

“This project would safeguard hazardous openings at abandoned mines that look inviting and have even been advertised as exciting adventures to explore,” said Lucia Malin, program administrator. “However, abandoned mines have hidden hazards such as unexpected vertical drop offs, collapsing roofs and unstable sides, high levels of radiation, lack of oxygen or pockets of toxic gases. People who enter them are being foolhardy,” continued Malin. “Our message is Stay Out and Stay Alive!”

The public is invited to attend the open house to learn more about the project. “We hope anyone with an interest, questions or information about these mines will stop by and let us know,” said Steve Fluke, project manager. “Input is needed by April 1.”

For more information contact either Lucia Malin or Steve Fluke at the Division of Oil, Gas and Mining, 1594 West North Temple, Suite 1210, P.O. Box 145801, Salt Lake City, Utah, 84114, or telephone (801) 538-5340. Information is also available at the division’s website at http://www.ogm.utah.gov/amr/default.htm.

###